

ABSTRACT

An exchange through which one or more trades of a security were executed issues an advertisement indicating the security, the amount traded over a given period, the trader and other pertinent information along with an indication that these trades were executed in the exchange. This enables the recipient of these advertisements to receive for the first time added confidence of trading capability in a given security.